INVESTING IN MIDDLESBORO

The last few weeks has seen a barrage of stock salesmen in Middlesboro, repeating a frequent experience in the city's history and leaving with a large slice of the city's money. For the most part, this is stock which means nothing to Middlesboro and none of it will be spent here.

Isn't it a queer thing that any average salesman can come into Middlesboro and sell any thing from gold bricks to oil wells, stock which the purchaser can not possibly know anything about, yet at the same time scarcely a citizen is willing to put money into enterprises in his own town, the place where he lives and gets his living, which he should believe in if he doesn't in any thing else?

In past years we have depended entirely upon the coal industry for our business and when it slackens we have had no place to turn. This situation will continue unless we broaden our industries, taking a lesson from the wheat farmers who have been able to get on their feet again only because they quit growing wheat altogether and diversified their crops.

Why should we continue, year after year, to put one money into outside concerns, or, at best, local concerns while it will make places to spend money, directly or indirectly in competition with us? Why can we not buy stock in industries of our own which will give employment to men in this section and which may use the lumber, coal or other native products of this section? Such a course would work a twofold benefit. It would build up new business here, giving employment to hundreds who would otherwise leave town or stay out of work. And it would bring money to those who invested in it, first through its profits, and second through their own individual business which the factory employees would surely patronize.

THE $75,000,000 BOND ISSUE

The Kentucky Legislature has passed and Governor W. J. Fields has approved the bill whereby the voters of Kentucky can decide at the regular election in November 1924 whether they wish the State to issue $75,000,000 bond issue, $50,000,000 of which shall be used to build a state wide, connected system of paved roads, one part to pay off the old standing state debt of about $6,000,000, and the balance to go for educational, penal, charitable and other public institutions and departments. The chief increase in revenue for all purposes is to be provided by raising the present gasoline tax of 1¢ per gallon to 3¢ per gallon. Some opposition from road bond boosters has been raised to saddling on motorists the financing of the $25,000,000 bond for purposes other than road building, while the cry has been raised, by what rather seems to us to be those usually classed as politicians, or they are at least active in political discussions, that a non-partisan or rather non-political body should have been provided to handle the expenditure of the proceeds of the bond issue, especially the road bond proceeds. It is just as safe to predict what will happen in a Kentucky election as to bet on a Kentucky horse race, even when you have a sure tip, but the battle lines will soon be drawn, and active warfare for and against the measure will be waged, and the entire contest will center around the question of whether the entire $75,000,000 bond issue will be passed, the bill providing that the entire sum must be voted on, and not bonds for any

Exalting the Golden Rule

Read Mt. 7:7-21. Text: 7:12. All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye unto them.

"God seems to have ordained that help shall often pass from himself to a man in need through another man, in order that in this way brotherhood may be built up in the world and men be bound together in a world unity. Being saved through believing in Jesus Christ involves also the vital righting of all social relationships, because in Jesus Christ is expressed God's great passion for a truly social life."

Meditation: Building the brotherhood is building the Kingdom of God. This is where life consists most. To be worthy of being built into the brotherhood we must be unselfish. This is the test of our value. Not what a man is worth to himself, but to others, determines whether or not he is worth saving.

Personal Question: How far is my life governed by the Golden Rule?

Prayer: Our Heavenly Father, we pray that our lives may be more fruitful in good-will and charity. May we not go as pilgrims of a lonely way, but as a glad company of children of the light. May thy kingdom not seem unreal and far away, but may we together with all thy children, be partakers of thy spirit and shaves, of thy grace, through Christ. Amen.

one of the several purposes for which they are to be applied.

We believe the passage of the bill is a victory for the Kentucky Good Roads Association, and was the direct result of their crystallizing public sentiment for a road bond issue, therefore, the bond issue advocates start off with the advantage of a large, crystallized sentiment in favor of the bonds, and while within their ranks some opposition has arisen to the gasoline tax to pay the bonds other than for good roads, this sentiment seems to be in the minority.

If the bill passes in November the first equal yearly installment of $10,000,000 will be available in June 1925, and the same amount each June for the following four years. The bonds will be paid off in unequal annual installments, $3,400,000 on July 1, 1926 and the last on July 1, 1955, or all within thirty years.—Appalachian Trade-Journal.

HOW MANY FRIENDS HAVE YOU?

The Kansas City Times in a recent editorial goes into a length discussion of the question, "Are Friends Helpful or Harmful?" The Star does not express any opinion of importance on the subject, but goes into the library and copies down the ideas of a number of great writers. The editorial follows:

"What's the worth of friends? One day recently a Baltimore physician, on the occasion of his ninety-third birthday, was asked the usual question about advice to young people. He replied that one must get away from here if he wished to succeed, and added:

"A man's friends never do him any good. If he has a lot, they expect too much of him. If he hasn't any, they don't matter. In either case, going home isn't going to help him."

"Are friends a burden or an aid? There is a varied testimony on the point. There is the familiar exclamation of the man who asked heaven to save him from his friends. There is the remark of George Eliot that animals are such agreeable friends; they ask no questions; they pass no criticisms." And there is the cynical remarks of one of Eliot's characters that a faithful dog is better than a Christian friend almost any time, especially in case of trouble. There is the wily and selfish Alexander Pope, who advised making use of every friend—and every foe.

"But in these remarks and others like them, there certainly is not the

EATING and DINING

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

It may be true that "pigs is pigs" but, so that as it may, it doesn't also mean that eats is eats. And that's an inspiration for a verse on food today, but I don't mean on reducing; keep your seats.

How often have you lunched at noon and eaten macaroni and also had a dish of mashed "potatoes"? Or maybe it was noodle soup—a sandwich of bologna and for dessert, a pudding made of dates.

It's just the same old story when you're rushing out to lunch; you see a dish of this or that and grab it. You help yourself to odds and ends and, then you sit and munch. The noonday bite is really just a bite.

For, all the time you're nibbling, there's a thought runs through your mind: You know you'll eat of home food pretty soon. And at your house for supper, sound hours later, you will find the same display of food you had at noon!

When you eat in repetition (maybe twice a day), it would almost seem a trifle out of line. But there really is a difference, folks who have, will gladly say, for at noon you only eat—at home you dine!

whole story of friends and friendship. The value and comfort of friends has been a theme for centuries. Cicero declared a friend is a kind of second self; Coleridge found in friendship a "sheltering tree;" and Longfellow on one occasion exclaimed that:

"Alas today I would give everything
To see a friend's face, or hear a voice
That had the slightest tone of comfort in it."

"The conclusion of the matter is likely to be found in the individual himself. Individuals, by nature and composition, speak of friends and of friendship in accordance with their own experience; influenced slightly, perhaps, by observation. But one's experience in this matter, as in all other matters, is determined pretty largely by himself. Emerson advised that the only way to have a friend is to be one."

NO. 1—MRS. CUCKOO IS OFFENDED

"Where are you, Mrs. Cuckoo? the dog that lives in that dog house over there across the street."

"Why, that's Radio Rex," laughed Nancy. "He wouldn't hurt a flea—I mean he wouldn't hurt anything else but a flea, and I'm sure he wouldn't make fun of you."

"Wouldn't he though?" exclaimed the cuckoo. "I just show you."

With that she came out of her dark corner and it was exactly five o'clock, she called out loudly: "Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo!"

Scaredly had her voice died away than out of his house sprang Radio Rex so suddenly that he nearly fell over.

"There! Didn't I tell you?" demanded the cuckoo. "He's got a house built almost exactly the shape of my clock and had the door made the same and everything. You can't tell me he isn't making me!"

"But he can't help," said Nick. "He is made that way. He can't go back into his house alone. He has to wait until someone puts him there. And when anybody calls him he has to pop out whether he wants to or not. He thinks you are calling him when he hears your voice. See, I'll show you."

Nick climbed down and gently lifted Rex back into his little house. Then he called sharply, "Rex, come out!" And the little dog came hopping out so quickly he hit Nick in the nose.

"Well, well, well! I declare!" laughed the cuckoo. "I'm not mad any more, and I promise to tell the time promptly every hour. It will be fun to watch the little dog come out."

What a difference it makes—the way we look at things, kiddies, doesn't it?

Hints From a House-Wife's Kitchen Diary

Good Food for Children and Adults

A PRACTICAL ANSWER TO A QUESTIONNAIRE

Some time ago a questionnaire was sent out to housewives in an endeavor to find out how they spent their time. It is to be confessed that in the great majority of cases the inquiry aroused only amused exasperation. Busy! Of course they were busy. Every woman was occupied and they would not take time to answer questions which seemed to lead nowhere.

One woman, however, did take the trouble to fill out the blanks as well as she could and in the space left "Observations" said: "As I suppose your object in this investigation is to help women to more leisure by systematizing their work, I wonder you have not asked them what means they have taken to simplify the cleaning up process after meals. For myself, I am sure I save much time and effort by a judicious choice of cooking utensils."

She was asked for more information on the point she mentioned. Her answer was "chamfered ware." This, as easily washed as crockery and practically unbreakable with any kind of care, she had found she could keep spotless and daintily attractive with a minimum of effort. So for once a questionnaire got a practical answer!

A SUBSTANTIAL VEGETABLE DISH THAT'S GOOD

An excellent dish for supper is baked eggplant. Pare the eggplant and cut into small cubes. Put in an enameled ware saucepan with a small quantity of hot water. Cover closely and cook for about twenty minutes. Meanwhile, slice a small onion very thin, and fry in another saucepan until brown.

When the eggplant is tender, remove from the fire and add to it the browned onions, half a tea-spoonful of salt, and the juice of a lemon. Then butter an enameled ware bake dish, put in a layer of the eggplant and then one of either cracker dust or breadcrumbs until the dish is full, having the cracker dust on top. Add a few dots of butter to the top and bake in a moderate oven.

Serve in the enameled ware bake dish, which is not only useful in the kitchen but ornamental on your table. Eggplant cooked this way affords a substantial item for your menu.

FOR THE KIDDIES' SUPPER

Children who take cold luncheons to school need hot and hearty food at night. Care, however, should be taken to see that the food is digestible as well as substantial in its nature. One mother, whose three thriving children show her good care, contributes this hint.

Try a vegetable soup made with m'k. Codd's carrots, potatoes, a little onion and a little turnip all together in an enameled ware saucepan until all are very soft. Rub through a colander. Put milk into an enameled ware double boiler. Heat just short of the boiling point and then stir in the pured vegetables. Cook slowly in the milk until all is smooth. The soup will not be discolored if it is cooked in enameled ware.

Served with toast or oyster crackers, this soup makes a meal in itself. It is very nourishing and will never give even a delicate child the nightmare, which can be so easily acquired from food too rich or heavy.

A HOT DISH FOR A COLD PICNIC

Skating will always hold its own as king of winter sports. Skating picnics are always popular. With vacuum bottle drinks can be kept so hot that coffee making over a fire is no longer necessary.

A good point, however, is to provide plenty of enameled ware mugs to drink out of, for very good weather metal cups are anything but pleasant and crackery may easily be broken by dropping from chilled fingers.

Should a hot dish, such as baked hash, be desired, cook it in an enameled ware bake dish, cover closely when first taken from the oven and wrap in several newspapers and then in an old blanket or heavy woolen cloth. Guarded this way, it will keep hot for hours.

THE MARCH WIND

The March wind is a boisterous lar, The wildest of breezes, Who likes to rush around like mad And do just what he pleases. He whistles underneath the doors And shakes the window sashes, Then down the chimney lar, scatters all the ashes.

On wash-days when the clothes are out All pinned and hung so neatly He falls upon them with a shout, And fills them up completely. Around the laundry yard he tears, With a twist and turn and antic. While all the things that come in pain Perform a ballet frantic.

And when night falls and heavy sleet On every lid is hanging, In through a crevice he will creep To set some door a hanging. "Burglars," the startled housewife cries And burrows 'neath the pillows. While far afoul the March Wind flies And laughs among the willows. —Rollo Shepherd.

MANHATTAN, Kas., Mar. 28—Farmers throughout the United States and Canada are going to college—by radio!

Not just sitting down evening and listening in on agricultural talks from authorities speaking at irregular intervals through all sorts of broadcasting stations. But actually participating in set courses, five nights a week, with prospects of being graduated after taking examinations.

One of the principal institutions broadcasting such courses for farmers in the Kansas State Agricultural College here. More than 1,000 farmers have actually enrolled in its "school of the air"—filled out an enrollment card and sent it in. Inestimable thousands more, says Sam Pigford, in charge of the school, are "attending" without having been enrolled.

The college broadcasts its courses through station KFKB at Milford, 32 miles from here. The lectures, delivered at a microphone in the college auditorium, are sent by line to the Milford station for broadcasting.

Subjects Taught

The lecturers are college professors and experts in their fields. No tuition is charged, no fees are taken for enrollment and examination at the end of the course is optional. The lectures, given from 7 to 9 each evening, except Saturday and Sunday, include:

ERNEST TRUEX, by virtue of the gross neglect which has been accorded him by his sundry dozen wives since the start of his famous career as the neglected husband of the footlights, has found ample time to specialize in the art of cuisine. He recommends to one and all a certain dish called Eggs à la Truex. In hitting upon this combination tho' star of "New Toys" has taken due thought of the difficulty confronting housewives in arranging eggs in new modes. His dish is compiled by the following simple formula:

Take six or eight sardines mashed with yolk of a hard-cooked egg, pepper and salt to taste, a little lemon juice and one teaspoon dried crepe. Serve on buttered toast, garnished round the edges with some finely chopped parsley and white of one egg rubbed over the top.

FABLES ON HEALTH

As Mr. Mann of Anytown hurried to his cold, ill-ventilated room he did not sympathetically let some chickens pecked in the window.

Probably he ought to be penitent.

Never a hole he turned to his face was under his breath, it was so cold when he opened it in the window. He staved off the cold in the other for a few hours.

That might be suspect of a cold, it was keeping him. He couldn't understand it. He had clean food and water and his coffee was clean.

So he tilted down the windows both cut of door. Get fresh air.

PURINA CHOWS ARE NOW ON THE JOB TO HELP YOU MAKE MORE PROFITS FROM YOUR CATTLE, HORSES, HOGS and POULTRY

OWNERS OF COWS, POULTRY, HOGS AND HORSES--

Yes, to help you make more profits—that's exactly what we mean. The sale of Purina Chows is based on that policy. If we can't help you figure out a better profit from feeding them, we have no right to expect your business.

All we ask is a chance to figure with you—not just the cost of feeds, but on the RESULTS. We want to show you how to lower the cost of production per pound of flesh, per gallon of milk, per dozen of eggs. We want to put the profit right in your pail, your egg basket or your milk ticket. Purina Chows are delivering the profit day in and day out all over the country. They will do it for you. Being able to prove their claims has made the Purina Mills the largest organization of its kind in the world.

The Purina System of feeding challenges every feed and system of feeding of whatever nature, home-grown or commercial. The decision is to be based on YOUR NET PROFITS. We are interested in nothing else—our future business depends upon making good upon that basis. YOUR PROFITS must come first, then ours come as a matter of course.

SO COME ON FOLKS--LET US FIGURE IT OUT TOGETHER

We don't expect you to stop feeding your home-grown crops. But we do want to show you the difference between feeding an unbalanced home-grown ration and properly balancing it up with Purina Chows. Let's both get rid of any set notions we might have in regard to feeding, and get down to brass tacks and prove our points. We're ready. How about you? Come talk it over. We won't do so very much talking. We will let Purina System do the most of it.

ABOUT THIRTY TRASH CANS TO BE PLACED ON STREETS

Locations for the new trash cans have been worked out by members of the Sanitary Trash Can company.
About thirty of these cans will be needed, according to the present plans. They will be put in use rapidly as they are completed by the next one will perhaps be placed in front of the Central school building on Twentieth street.

Tentative plans for location provide the placing of three cans on each side of the street in each block on Cumberland avenue between Nineteenth and Twenty-first streets and two in other business blocks.

Wilder Boys Boarding House
The boarding and rooming house on Nineteenth street near the Nineteenth Street Drug store has been purchased by Andy Wilder from John Hart. Mr.
Wilder who is from Edgewood is now in charge of the place. The establishment was formerly operated by the late Bill Baker.

Vester Jackson who was seriously ill for several weeks was able to be at his shop, the Jackson Service garage, today.

His Comrade's Tribute!

This unique monument stands over the grave of a stone cutter named Baker in the Bedford (Ind.) cemetery. It represents his unfinished task. His bench is reproduced in stone as he left it. The memorial was designed and chiseled by Baker's co-workers. Every little line, even the grain of the wood, was traced by the expert stone-cutter.
